

ArroWhere™ Independent Sales Representatives Wanted

If you are passionate about selling, motivated by developing and growing your territory, and always wanted to create and manage your own commercial relationships, then we would like to talk with you about joining ArroWhere's external sales team.

We are a Canadian (Calgary-based) manufacturer looking for independent sales representatives in different localities across Canada covering different industries including cycling, running, athletic, and industrial. In your role, you will offer a variety of ArroWhere™ products to retailers and corporations in your territory. The cycling industry alone, for example, has over 5000 retail stores in America generating $18 Billion in annual sales.

About ArroWhere:

The ArroWhere™ concept is research proven and can help to make people safer outdoors, especially on public roads and highways.

For the everyday runners, cyclists, and athletes that train in (low light) outdoor conditions, ArroWhere provides performance equipment and apparel that ensures their safety of others sharing the motorway. Through its simple yet revolutionary patented/patent-pending designs and products, ArroWhere creates a common language between everyday athletes and motorists that improves communication, facilitates understanding, and establishes a foundation for a cooperative motorway sharing community.

Our worldwide patent-pending ArroWhere Arrow design can be seen in low beam car headlights at a distance of as much as 1/4 mile or more from the wearer. Thanks to the ubiquitous message contained in the arrow design, drivers and other road users most likely will subconsciously and/or automatically react to the reflected ArroWhere Arrow as it guides them to move in a direction away from the wearer/user. As is the case in the many other roadside applications of arrow signage, no driver intends to hit an arrow and, whether he/she understands that the arrow is worn by a cyclist or not, he/she will move around such a symbol.

Right Attitude:

Our sales reps are as proud and excited about our worldwide patented/patent-pending revolutionary safety products as we are. They have a desire to get the product in peoples' hands and make it happen. They are willing to learn and thrive on any mistakes made. Their high energy level matches their ambition for success. They are innovative and communicate with ArroWhere™ executives about initial feedback and more.
